SCOUTING REPORT – ADAM BEJI

Date of Birth: 7 April 2007

Nationality: Swedish

Position: Central Defender

Preferred Foot: Right

Height: 193 cm

Club: IFK Skövde FK

Report by: ScoutBridge Scouting Department

Player Overview

Adam Beji is a physically dominant and progressive central defender with a modern skill set and clear upside for senior football. At 193 cm, he combines height, strength, and above-average speed, making him a well-rounded defensive profile with tools suited for higher levels.

Technical Ability

Beji is confident and composed in possession. He consistently dares to take responsibility during build-up phases, stepping forward with the ball and attempting progressive passes through midfield lines. His right foot is reliable both in short circulation and longer distributions. He frequently looks to find the holding midfielder early, which shows initiative and game understanding. While this bravery can occasionally lead to turnovers, it is viewed as a positive developmental trait rather than a weakness at his age.

Physical & Defensive Profile

Physically, Beji stands out. He is strong in contact, aggressive in duels, and unusually fast for his size. His mobility allows him to cover space effectively, recover in transition, and support teammates when the defensive structure is stretched. He changes body positions well and shows good timing in sliding tackles as well as in direct defensive duels.

Tactical Understanding

Beji is comfortable in a back four but also projects well as the right-sided centre-back in a back three, where his pace and physicality can be maximised. At times, he can become overly ball-oriented, stepping out too aggressively, which is an area for tactical refinement. This is considered a normal part of his development process.

Areas for Development

A key area to improve is his aerial timing. Given his height and strength, he should be more dominant in the air. Adjusting positioning and timing in aerial duels will significantly raise his defensive efficiency.

We believe Adam Beji is capable of contributing at Division 2 or Division 3 level in Sweden in the short term. With continued tactical development and refinement in aerial play, he has the potential to establish himself as a strong senior centre-back in Ettan within the next 2 years.
